Subject: Karen Kain named honorary patron of Lady Cove Women's Choir

Karen Kain, one of the leading classical ballerinas in the world, has become the honorary patron of the Newfoundland and Labrador-based Lady Cove Women's Choir. The announcement was made today by Donna Ball, chair of Lady Cove's board of directors, and Kellie Walsh, the choir's founder and conductor.

Ms. Ball said that the choir was seeking an honorary patron who is highly regarded nationally as a supporter and promoter of the arts and someone who might have a particular affinity to Newfoundland and Labrador, women in the arts, and choral music, adding that she is confident Ms. Kain's profile will lend prestige to the choir by ensuring its continued growth and development provincially, nationally and internationally.

"This is a milestone for Lady Cove," Ms. Ball said. "We are absolutely pleased that Ms. Kain has agreed to become our honorary patron, and to have someone with such a stellar reputation in the performing arts associated with Lady Cove represents a new era for the group. The choir has always been driven on the inspiration of the singers and supporters and audiences; we expect that Ms. Kain's entrance into Lady Cove's story will inspire us further still."

"In my trips to Newfoundland, I have always been impressed with everyone's love of music and its integration into regular life," Ms. Kain said. "I am so happy to be able to support an organization like the Lady Cove Women's Choir that celebrates the cultural riches of this part of the country."

Ms. Walsh noted that the choir has a busy year ahead and having such aluminous honorary patron is adding momentum the choir's activities. "A number of choir members are traveling to Labrador next month to participate in a Festival 500 regional event, and we also have several concerts coming up," Ms. Walsh said. "Performing is ultimately the reason we are together as a group and the feedback we get from our audiences is tremendous, but Ms. Kain's joining us in the capacity of honorary patron will give the choir a great lift as we go about our music-making in 2010 and beyond."
